

Newborn Hearing Screening: How did your little one do?

- ✿ If your baby passed—Good news! But hearing loss can still start later in life, so ask your baby's health care provider how to spot problems.
- ✿ If your baby didn't pass—Talk to your baby's health care provider today and find out what you should do next.
- ✿ If you're not sure—Ask your baby's health care provider about the results of the test.

There are many things that can be done to help babies with hearing loss. Finding hearing loss early gives babies the best chance to learn.

For more information, talk to your baby's health care provider or call the Virginia Early Hearing Detection and Intervention Program at (804) 864-7718 or 1-866-493-1090 (toll free)
www.vahealth.org/hearing/

Supported in part by project I H61 MC 00046 01 from the Maternal and Child Health Program (Title V, Social Security Act).
Health Resources and Services Administration, U.S. Department of Health and Human Services